The State Street Methodist Church, South Bristol, which was recently completed at a cost of $27,000, was dedicated Sunday. The sermon, by Dr. Collins Denny, of Vanderbilt University, Nashville, was listened to by more than 1,500 persons. In this church the Holston Conference will hold its annual meeting next month. A love feast held in the church in the afternoon was conducted by Dr. David Sullins, of Cleveland, Tenn.

In Mecklenburg county the tobacco crop will be more than 2 per cent. below the average. The low prices have not discouraged the farmers, but the weather has been unsuitable—entirely too much rain. For this reason the crop is light. The falling off will not be in acreage, but in weight. At this time the farmers are all busy curing the weed. It is all now blue cured.

There was a disastrous fire in the tobacco factory section of Danville, entailing a loss closely approximating $100,000, which was only partially insured. The origin of the fire is a mystery. One of the factories destroyed was occupied by John B. Anderson & Co., and the other one jointly by the same firm and Mr. Chalmers Patterson, a local dealer. Both buildings, which were brick structures, were destroyed, together with their contents. The Union warehouse, George E. Coleman & Co., proprietors, was badly damaged. J. B. Anderson & Co. are the heaviest losers by the fire. They had tobacco valued at $75,000 stored in the house and carried $60,000 insurance.

Lee Barksdale, colored, an escaped prisoner from the chain gang, was shot by Danville police. Barksdale, colored, who had also been in the chain gang, was shot by Danville police. Barksdale's wound, which is in the shoulder, is not considered dangerous.

A dynamite explosion at the Clayton mines, operated by the Pulaski Company, near Pulaski, killed William Goings, colored, a blacksmith, and dangerously wounded his 14-year-old son. A third of a box of the explosive had been left in the blacksmith shop, where the men were working. How it was exploded is not known. The shop was blown into kindling wood and all the clothes were blown off of the dead man. He had been at work only a short time when the explosion took place.

But for the timely arrival of several men Miss Annie Dixon, who conducts a fashionable hairdressing parlor for ladies on the fifth floor of the Law Building, on Main Street, Lynchburg, would have been burned to death. The explosion was using an alcohol lamp, which exploded, throwing the burning fluid over her clothing. Instantly she was in a light blaze. She ran to a nearby bathroom, screaming as she went, and endeavored to throw water upon the flames. She returned to her parlor, and there she was thrown to the floor and rolled in a rug, which completely extinguished the flames. Dixon was severely injured and all her clothing from her waist up was burned off her.

The police authorities of Stephens City are investigating the discovery of a healthy looking white baby, about 2 weeks old, that was mysteriously placed on the front porch of the residence of John Massie, in the suburbs of that town, while the family were absent. Suspicion is said to point to a woman whose name the police refuse to divulge.

At Mountain City, near Bristol, "Jeff" Church has been sentenced to 10 years in the penitentiary for the murder of James Campbell. The citizens are said to be indignant over the verdict. The murder was a brutal one, Church having rammed his victim's face while the latter was pleading for mercy after he had been shot 2 times.

Buried for nearly an hour under several tons of lumber was the frightful corpse of John Haines, a teamster from Hampshire County, West Virginia, in Winchester. He is at Memorial Hospital in a precarious condition. A wheel of the wagon which Haines was driving fell off and the lumber wagon upset, pinning Haines under the heavy load.

Two large sturgeons, one weighing 300 pounds and the other about 200 pounds, were captured in the Rappahannock river at the foot of the falls above Fredericksburg. Both sturgeons had gotten into shallow water.

Roanoke was offered $10,000 for the fish farm of 10 acres, purchased about two years ago for $10,000 for park purposes. The offer was made by the Tidewater Railway Company, which recently purchased the fair grounds of 30 acres, lying a half mile east of the fish farm. The offer must be accepted within ten days or it will be withdrawn. Roanoke business men say it indicates that Roanoke is to have the shops of the new river.

Superintendent of Construction J. F. Wrenn, of the Tidewater Railroad, announced that Wm. J. Oliver, representing Sands & Oliver, of Roanoke, had closed a million-dollar deal with the Southern Railway. The contract calls for the double-tracking of the Southern from Morristown to Knoxville and the building of a branch line from Chattanooga to Stephens, all in Tennessee. Sands & Oliver were recently relieved of a part of their contract to build a railroad for the first 10 miles of the Tidewater. Superintendent Wrenn says the contractors get $2,000,000 for building a mile-long tunnel between Knoxville and Morristown, which is now being constructed under Lookout Mountain.

The resignation of Rev. Dr. Robert J. McBridge as rector of Robert E. Lee Memorial Episcopal Church, of Lexington, has been accepted by the vestry. Dr. McBridge goes to St. George's Church, Fredericksburg. For over 22 years Dr. McBridge has been pastor of Lee Memorial Church, and he is greatly beloved here.

A force of civil engineers of the Southern Railway is engaged in surveying a route around Lynchburg for a line for that system by which the freight trains can be carried around the city in order to avoid the heavy grades in and out of Lynchburg. Two routes are being surveyed, one below and the other above the city.

After breaking into two North Carolina stores 14 miles apart on consecutive nights a desperado, who proved to be John Baker, a negro of Portsmouth, was mortally wounded at Hobbinsville, N. C. A heavy charge of buckshot passed through his side.

Henry Purden, the 9-year-old son of Captain Purden, of the Seaboard Air Line Railway, Portsmouth, has lockjaw and is likely to die. He fell from a tree several days ago and suffered a compound fracture of his arm. Both bones were broken and the flesh was badly lacerated. Gangrene has developed and there is little hope of saving the boy's life.

Harlie Steele, son of Edward Steele, of Middletown, lies at his home in a serious condition from a gunshot wound in his shoulder. The result of a hunting accident. While out with his father the other day he was shot in the shoulder.

Dr. S. Davidson, Ex-Lieut. U. S. Army, Washington, D. C., care U. S. Pension Office, writes:

"To my mind there is no remedy for catarrh comparable to Peruna. It not only strikes at the root of the malady, but it tones and strengthens the system in a truly wonderful way. That has been its history in my case. I cheerfully and unhesitatingly recommend it to those afflicted as I have been."—F. S. Davidson.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis. Address Dr. S. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.

What was supposed to have been an ordinary case of suicide by asphyxiation may develop into murder, in the case of Alfred Krattinger, an expert accountant, who was found dead in his room at 435 West Fifty-sixth street. Corner Scholar was about to give a certificate, when it was discovered that the transom was open, the doorkey broken and a window unlocked—unusual circumstances in such cases. A further examination disclosed a bruise over the right ear. A diamond pin worth $100 was missing, as well as a wallet, usually colored, as would have been the case in death by gas. There was so little smell of gas that a theory is offered that some murderer for robbery turned on the gas to hide his crime.

In agony, screaming for help, while pedestrians crossing the Brooklyn bridge looked and laughed, Winfield Pendleton, impaled on a spike at the top of an eight-foot fence which runs along the south roadway, wriggled helplessly until Policeman James Farron of the bridge squad came to his assistance and lifted him from the spike. Pendleton, who is a laborer, lives at Coney Island. He started to cross the bridge at the south roadway. Discovering that he was not on the promenade, he climbed the spike fence, dividing the racks of the trolley and expected to climb up to the promenade. In some manner he slipped, and the point of one of the spikes entered his abdomen. He is seriously, but not fatally, injured.

Charles Miller, an animal trainer at the Bostock show at Coney Island, after a fight for an hour, was forced to abandon an attempt to put Tammany, a full-grown Bengal tiger, through his paces. When the tiger was driven into the arena he jumped at the trainer, who met the animal with a fusillade of blank cartridges. Maddened by the smarting powder, the tiger again sprang at Miller, who this time met the attack with a heavy iron bar. Hardly a sound came from the crowd of spectators when the trainer made a last attempt to force the animal to its pedestal. Again he failed, after which he was persuaded to drive the tiger from the arena.

Suffering from lack of food, Miss Eleanor Howard dropped fainting in front of the Hotel Astor. She had walked five miles in vain search for friends of her childhood to invoke their aid. Two women in evening gowns rushed to her aid as she sank to the pavement. Their escorts helped Policemen O'Neill to carry the unconscious girl to the Long Acre Pharmacy, a block away. There she was revived by Dr. Brown of Roosevelt Hospital, who came in response to a hurry call.

Two months ago she had to go to Bellevue Hospital, where an operation was performed for appendicitis. Her sickness took all of her small savings, and since her discharge a few days ago she has not been able to obtain a new position.

A vivid dream in which Mrs. William Garrity of 525 Humboldt Street, Brooklyn, saw her 15-year-old son mangled by a car was proved true, when the mother learned that he had been killed by a car in Pennsylvania on May 7. The boy, William Garrity, ran away from home on May 4 to follow a circus. After her boy's disappearance Mrs. Garrity had vivid dreams about him. She had a vision Saturday that her boy had fallen under the wheels of a train. The vividness of the dream fastened itself upon her so that the next day she again called on the police and begged them to make inquiries regarding the boy. That evening she was visited by a stranger, who said he was a circus man, who gave her the news.

A mob on Clinton Street caused the death of a little girl while trying to get at a motorman, and in the riot that followed several persons were badly hurt. The victim of the accident was Anna Schriener, 2 years old. With her father and another man, she was being led across the street when a crowd of northbound car rolled the girl under the fender, where she lay crying, but apparently uninjured. Before the motorman could step from the platform and lift the fender the crowd made a rush for him, and in the scramble he was forced against the controller, turning it around and putting on a full current. Instantly the car shot forward a distance of 200 feet and the child's body was ground to pieces.

The sergeant in the West Thirtieth Street Station heard a voice but saw nobody until he stood up and looked over the desk. Then he made out "Will" Arden, a grown man, who is just 35 inches tall.

"Sergeant, I've been robbed," the little man said. "I was going home on a Thirty-fourth Street car, when two big loafers, who were three times as tall as I, picked me up and stole my diamond and turquoise scarfpin, worth $150."

Ex-Mayor Goes to Prison. Raleigh, N. C. (Special).—The Supreme Court denied the application of ex-Mayor McCown, of Durham, for a writ of habeas corpus and directed that he serve the term of 30 days in jail, to which he was sentenced for cursing and striking Judge George Ward, of the Superior Court, because the Judge refused to increase the sentence of a man who had killed McCown's brother-in-law.

INTENSE HEAT PRODUCES PRECIOUS STONES.

Scientists Have Succeeded in Plucking Real Diamonds and Rubies From the Crucible of the Furnace.

Recent advices from France state that Professor Moissan, the eminent scientist and inventor, has actually succeeded in making genuine diamonds and rubies. He employs for this purpose the electric furnace, which has been so improved that a degree of heat can be produced approaching the extreme temperatures which were undoubtedly a factor in the formation of minerals and gems in the interior of the earth.

The rubies obtained are of large size, weighing ten or fifteen carats, and in quality and color equal and even surpass those found in the earth. The natural forces attending the formation of diamonds seem to have been more complicated, and so far the diamonds resulting from the efforts of the scientists have been very small, but still they are positively identified as the carbon crystal—the diamond. They are remarkably clear and bright, and on a small scale as fine specimens as nature's own product.

The electric furnace has enriched chemistry with a whole series of new compounds. Probably the one of most value to mankind at large is Calcium Carbide. The simple application of water to Calcium Carbide generates the gas Acetylene, which is now being commonly used for lighting.

The peculiar merits of Acetylene light are its brilliance and high candle power, ease of installation, economy and its adaptability for lighting buildings of every description, regardless of their location.

PAT RAFFERTY AND THE TELLER

Doubt as to His Identity Worried This Irishman.

There is a rule in one at least of the savings banks in Massachusetts that when a passbook is presented with an order for payment from the depositor the identification of the payee is required for amounts exceeding $100.

One day an Irishman, evidently not long in this country, appeared at the paying teller's window for a draft of $123, presenting a passbook and an order from the owner of the book to pay Patrick Rafferty the amount.

The order was in proper form, but the payee was not known to the teller. "Do you know any of the officers here?" he asked of Pat.

"No," replied Pat.

"Well, then, you will have to be identified to us in some way."

"What's that?" asked the now confused Irishman.

"Why," explained the teller, "you will have to get some one whom we know and who knows you to come in here and identify you. You might be anybody, and we want to be sure that we are paying Patrick Rafferty."

Pat looked dazed and went over to a seat and for ten or fifteen minutes looked stupidly at the passbook and order.

Finally he approached the window again, with the most dubious look imaginable on his face, and said, "Say, young feller, if I'm not Pat Rafferty, who the devil am I?"

Dead or Not, He Was Buried.

Over twenty years ago S. P. Ives, a well-known legal light of Essex county, and Charles P. Thompson of the superior court were pitted against each other in an important life insurance case at Salem, Mr. Ives for the company and Mr. Thompson for the plaintiff. Mr. Thompson was very anxious to put into the case certain affidavits, and Mr. Ives was equally strenuous in opposition.

After lengthy arguments the judge decided in Mr. Thompson's favor, and he proceeded to read, with much emphasis, depositions relating to surgical treatment, death, funeral and last the interment of the insured.

As Mr. Thompson finished reading this, which was from a sexton of the cemetery, giving name, date, number of burial lot, etc., he threw the papers upon the table and, addressing the judge, said, with a bit of impediment in speech which sometimes bothered him: "There, your honor. Perhaps Bro. Ives don't believe this man is dead! But we've buried him, anyway."—Boston Herald.

They Knew the Answer.

"You never can tell how children are going to apply things," said a public school teacher.

"The other day I asked the class what a fort was. One boy answered, 'A place to put men in.'"

"Then what's a fortress?" said I.

"A place to put women in!" exclaimed the class in unison.

STRONGER THAN MEAT.

A Judge's Opinion of Grape-Nuts.

A gentleman who has acquired a judicial turn of mind from experience on the bench out in the Sunflower State, writes a carefully considered opinion as to the value of Grape-Nuts as food. He says:

"For the past five years Grape-Nuts has been a prominent feature in our bill of fare.

"The crisp food with the delicious, nutty flavor has become an indispensable necessity in my family's everyday life.

"It has proved to be most healthful and beneficial, and has enabled us to practically abolish pastry and pies from our table, for the children prefer Grape-Nuts and do not crave rich and unwholesome food.

Identity of His Visitor Was a Real Puzzle.

A well-known New York publisher has the entrance to his private office guarded by one of his editors, a small man, who, as the day wears on, sinks down in a little heap in his high-backed chair under the weight of the manuscripts he has to read. The publisher was exceedingly proud of his friendship with the late Thomas B. Reed, who usually called when he was in New York.

One day the huge form of the speaker of the House of Representatives loomed up before the little editor, with the evident intent of bearing down upon the private office.

"Back!" shouted the little editor, waving a slender arm with much vigor. "Back! Go back to the offit and thend in your card."

Mr. Reed paused, inclined his head to view the obstacle that opposed his progress and smiled. Then he ponderously turned on his heel and did as he was directed.

Of course, the published bustled out personally to conduct the great man into the private office. When his visitor had departed the publisher came forth in a rage. The little editor shivered before him as he began.

"You confounded idiot, what do you mean by holding up Tom Reed in this fashion? Don't you know he is one of my oldest friends? Don't you know he's at perfect liberty to walk into my office at any time without as much as knocking?"

"Yeth," admitted the little editor feebly.

"You do? Then what do you mean by holding him up and subjecting him to such discourtesy?"

"I thought he wath Dr. John Hall."

"Dr. John Hall!" exclaimed the exasperated publisher. "Dr. John Hall! Don't you know that Dr. John Hall is dead?"

"Yeth," returned the little editor with earnest sincerity. "That's what bothered me."

America's First Iron Bridge.

Up to 1840 there were no iron bridges in the United States except suspension bridges, in which iron links were used in the cables and suspenders, the floor system being of wood. The first bridge in America consisting of iron throughout was built in 1840 by Earl Trumbull over the Erie canal in the village of Frankfort, N. Y.

YELLOW CRUST ON BABY

Would Crack Open and Scab Causing Terrible Itching—Cured by Cuticura.

"Our baby had a yellow crust on his head which I could not keep away. When I thought I had succeeded in getting his head clear, it would start again by the crown of his head, crack and scale, and cause terrible itching. I then got Cuticura Soap and Ointment, washing the scalp with the soap and then applying the Ointment. A few treatments made a complete cure. I have advised many mothers to use Cuticura, when I have been asked about the same ailment of their babies. Mrs. John Boyce, Pine Brush, N. Y."

PAINFUL PERIODS

AMERICAN WOMEN FIND RELIEF

The Case of Miss Irene Crosby Is One of Thousands of Cures Made by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

How many women realize that menstruation is the balance wheel of a woman's life, and while no woman is entirely free from periodical suffering, it is not the plan of nature that women should suffer so severely.

Thousands of American women, however, have found relief from all monthly suffering by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it is the most thorough female regulator known to medical science. It cures the condition which causes so much discomfort and robs menstruation of its terrors.

Miss Irene Crosby, of 313 Charlton Street East Savannah, Ga., writes: "Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a true friend to woman. It has been of great benefit to me, curing me of irregular and painful menstruation when everything else had failed, and I gladly recommend it to other suffering women."

Women who are troubled with painful or irregular menstruation, backache, headache (or flatulence), leucorrhoea, falling inflammation or ulceration of the uterus, ovarian troubles, that "bearing-down" feeling, dizziness, faintness, indigestion, nervous prostration or the blues, should take immediate action to ward off the serious consequences, and be restored to perfect health and strength by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and then write to Mrs. P. K. O'Connell, Lynn, Mass., for further advice.
